

CREATIVE SECTION

“This art work represents science as well as psychology. It’s based on the theory of time travel where a boy is looking through a telescope what the past was like or the what the future will be like. This can also represent the James Webb telescope(which will help us look back in time). This also represents a scope of hope that some day this pandemic will be over and environment will be under control.”

-Yash Doshi

“Chemistry is the study of matter, but I prefer to see it as the study of Change” - Walter White. Just like the above quote, I believe Science itself is a powerful molecule that can change, create and INNOVATE the world.”

-Akshay Koradia

